

VISIT TO GIRL, THEN SUICIDE.

Nineteen-Year-Old Boy, Out of Work and Unable to Win His Sweetheart at Once, Puts a Bullet Through Head.

TIRED OF BEING DEPENDENT.

Young Bonani Wrote Letters to His Brother and Miss Katze and Then Pulled the Trigger with Fatal Result.

Arthur Bonani, a nineteen-year-old clerk, living with his brother, Silvio, at No. 933 Sixth avenue, was found dead on his bed to-day. He had shot himself in the night with a revolver. He was in love with Florence Katze, of No. 7 Minetta street, and being out of work could not marry her and so was despondent.

Young Bonani was an Austrian. His father is a well-to-do hat manufacturer living on the other side. His brother Silvio came to this country many years ago. Four years ago Arthur came over and Silvio got work for him as a book-keeper.

Quarrelled with Brother.
He lived with Silvio until a year ago, when they quarrelled and the boy left. Six months later Silvio got a letter from his father saying that Arthur was in a hospital at No. 34 Chambers street and in need of $100 to pay for an operation. He wanted Silvio to let him have it.

Silvio went to No. 34 Chambers street and found that it was a saloon. He also got hold of Arthur there and they became reconciled. The boy went back to live with Silvio, who got him a place as cashier at Morello's. He lost this place two months ago and has since been despondent.

While he was away from his brother's he met Florence Katze. He told Silvio that he loved her, but nothing else about her.

Shot Caused No Alarm.

Last night Arthur came home about 11 o'clock and retired as usual. A shot was heard in the night, but, as the boy often made target practice with a small rifle against a steel plate in his room, it was supposed that he was at his old game.

When the servant went to call him to-day she found him dead on the bed, a bullet in his head and a revolver and a note addressed to Silvio by his side. The note simply said that he was tired of being supported by others and had decided to kill himself.

There was also a letter addressed to the Katze girl, which, with a $1 bill, had been put in the little room safe. The door had been closed on it, but part of the letter and the bill stuck out. Silvio did not open the safe, leaving this for the coroner, who was notified.

Florence Katze lives with her mother. Mrs. Katze said to-day that Arthur was at the house last night and played cards with Florence. He seemed despondent but gave no hint that he intended to kill himself.

"There was no talk of their marrying for the present," she said. "They were only children, but they loved each other. They expected to be married some day. Arthur was as dear to me as if he were my own son."

When Florence heard that her lover was dead she had hysterics.

POPULAR-PRICE MURTHA VERY ILL.

He Was the First Manager in New York to Cut Rates for Stage Performances.

Frank B. Murtha, one of the best-known theatrical managers in the country and the first man to introduce popular price playhouses in this city, is seriously ill at his home, No. 243 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street.

Mr. Murtha is sixty years old. He came to New York when he was three years old, and after being educated in the public schools and Fordham College he went into the wholesale grocery business, eventually becoming a member of the firm of Fowler & Murtha, whose store occupied the site of the present Herald Building.

Thirty years ago he sold out his interest in the grocery concern and became treasurer of Niblo's Garden. After that he became manager of several theatres, until he finally took the old Windsor Theatre on the Bowery, where he first introduced popular prices of 10, 20 and 25 cents. He began this departure by billing Buffalo Bill for three weeks. Afterward he engaged in the same theatre and at the same price Lester Wallack, Lawrence Barrett, Kyrie Bellew, Annie Russell, De Wolf Hopper and Eileen Hervey and Shannon. Mr. Murtha made such a success with the popular prices that after the old Windsor Theatre burned down he was then managing the old Park Theatre, which was replaced by the Herald Square—he built the new Windsor. Then several years ago he went uptown and built the Murray Hill. About three years ago ill health forced him to abandon the active management of the Murray Hill.

EX-SENATOR ALLEN DEAD.

Was Prominent Among Northwest-ern Republicans.

SEATTLE, Jan. 29.—John Beard Allen, former United States Senator from Washington, is dead at his residence here of angina pectoris. Senator Allen was born at Crawfordsville, Ind., in 1846, and came West while a young man. He always had been prominent in Republican politics in the northwest. In 1888 he was elected territorial delegate to Congress, and upon the admission of Washington as a state in 1889 was chosen as one of the first United States Senators during the short term.

In 1892 he was a candidate for re-election, but the Legislature was dead-

FLORENCE KATZE, SWEETHEART OF BONANI, WHO KILLED HIMSELF.

HER DEATH DUE TO PYROMANIA.

Peculiar Form of Insanity Which Carried Off Mrs. Green Is Puzzling the Specialists at Bellevue.

Dr. Packer and his associates in the insane pavilion at Bellevue Hospital are puzzled to-day over the peculiar form of insanity which caused the death of Mrs. George C. Green, wife of the caretaker of the summer residence of Joseph J. O'Donoghue, jr., at Elberon, N. J.

Mrs. Green was brought to the hospital Jan. 15 suffering with a mania which she claimed forced her to set fire against her will. While perfectly conscious of her ailment, the patient was unable to conquer it, and her condition became rapidly worse until she became uncontrollable and had to be confined in a straight jacket.

Joseph J. Donoghue, jr., a coffee merchant at No. 101 Front street, who has employed the husband of the unfortunate woman for many years, told the story of her death to-day:

"I cannot imagine what caused Mrs. Green's insanity. Both she and her husband performed their duties as employers of my summer home at Elberon in a satisfactory manner, and I never suspected that there was anything wrong with the woman until Green wrote to me about Christmas time that his wife had been acting queerly and asked me what he had better do about it."

"He said she took a constant delight in burning papers and rubbish in the front yard and on one occasion she had attempted to set fire to the house. I sent my family physician, Dr. Charles McMillan, who lives near my winter home in Lakewood, to see what he could do for her. He recommended that she be taken to Bellevue."

"Therefore we could get her to New York she was seized with an acute form of pyromania and went about trying to burn everything she could lay her hands on. She died in less than two weeks. Her husband admits now that insanity is hereditary in her family."

COAL THIEF SET FREE.

Told Magistrate that His Family Had No Fuel.

Magistrate Smith in the Long Island City Court suspended sentence to-day in the case of James Rose, who was arrested for stealing coal from the cars of the Long Island Railroad Company at Sunnyside, N. Y., and that was the reason he stole the coal. Magistrate Smith said he would give him another chance.

"Who Can Cure Asthma?"

asked Mr. P. Langford, of 232 East 95th st., New York.

"I was told that asthma was incurable, and as different doctors and medicines had all failed to cure me, I began to believe this myself."

"My disease was near consumption. In fact, many thought that I had consumption, and I spit blood, had night sweats, chills and fever, and was getting so weak I could not sleep or work."

"My breath was daily getting shorter, my strength and flesh were fast leaving me, and I was finding a pitiable sight when I applied to the Kooch Lung Cure, at 46 West 23d st., New York."

"But they have cured me, and I again feel strong and well and my life of pain and suffering has been turned to joy and comfort."

"I invite any one to call and see for himself. I know from experience that the Kooch Lung Cure, which goes directly into the lungs, will cure asthma and consumption."

"I have tested the treatment, and it has cured me. My neighbors and friends will prove the truth of my statement."

'HE WOULD BE RID OF ME,' SAYS WIFE

But Mrs. Kennedy's Accusation Against Husband Does Not Save Her from Bellevue Insane Ward.

Mrs. Mary J. Kennedy, fifty-six years old, of No. 1789 Amsterdam avenue, indignantly denied her husband Edward's accusation in the Harlem Court to-day that she was subject to hallucinations.

"If I am in the condition he says I am," said Mrs. Kennedy, "Why doesn't he get a doctor to attend me. He has a good position and can well afford to do it. I am not insane in any way and the reason he has brought me here is because he wants to get rid of me."

"The man is a private detective in the employ of the Adams Express Company's twenty-third street branch. He presented a certificate from Dr. G. B. Harrington, of No. 487 West One Hundred and Forty-fifth street, to the effect that Mrs. Kennedy was suffering from hallucinations, and said he wanted her committed to Bellevue Hospital for examination as to her sanity."

After Magistrate Crane had heard Mrs. Kennedy's side of the case he said to her husband: "I should think you ought to send your wife to a sanatorium. If she is afflicted in the way you describe, and not to a public institution."

Kennedy was obstinate, however, and Magistrate Crane committed the woman to Bellevue Hospital.

MR. HORSE THRIVES ON COLD MOLASSES

Diet Makes the Steed Fat and Happy, and Besides It's a Cheap Food.

Molasses is now the proper diet for workhorses. They like it as much as you did when you were a youngster and used to beg your mother to spread it on your bread. It's mighty good for them, too; better than oats, according to Dr. George H. Berns, of the Berns Veterinary Hospital, in Brooklyn.

He says that between 4,000 and 5,000 horses are being fed with molasses daily in Brooklyn and that they put on flesh faster and are in better health than horses fed on the usual oats diet. The molasses is mixed with water, cornmeal, bran and cut hay, is fed to horses three times a day if indoors and night and morning if at work, oats being used in the middle of the day.

"We are using molasses as a food for horses very extensively," said Dr. Berns, "not only in my own hospital, but in a number of stables under our care professionally. I find it a most nutritious and digestible food for hard-working draft animals."

Horses in harness from twelve to fourteen hours a day do not take time to masticate and properly prepare oats and other dry fodder, and the result is that the most of it is expelled from the body without having been digested or assimilated; therefore, they receive but little nutritive value from their food.

"I have been feeding on molasses about a hundred horses of Arbuckle's sugar refinery for nearly two years past and have been feeding horses in my hospital on molasses and have been continually recommending its use in many stables in Brooklyn during that period. The cost is about 33 per cent. less than the old system of feeding."

DETECTIVES WHO FAILED TO DETECT.

Health Board Sleuths Miss Man Who Not Only Spat on Floor, but Wiped It with Protester.

For two weeks two detectives of the Health Department have been travelling to and fro on the Staten Island boats trying to find culprits who do not obey the health laws forbidding spitting on the floor, and they were on board the Robert Garrett to-day on the 7:10 trip from St. George. In the men's cabin sat a stout man, chewing tobacco. Just as he expectorated a young man, very much smaller, was passing, and only by great agility saved his trousers from a bespattering. "Do you rate yourself as a gentleman?" he angrily asked the fat man. "Then don't expectorate on the floor." The fat man, who was accused at this, and the laid violent hands on the little man, and removed all traces of the tobacco juice from the floor with him. The two detectives hastened for the big man, but he saw them first and rushed out of the men's cabin with the detectives in pursuit, and sought refuge in the "Ladies Cabin." A crowd of curious men followed, causing a momentary panic there, as the women investigated what something serious had happened in the fog. The detectives did not catch the man, but stationed themselves in advantageous places to get him when the boat landed. But in the rush to get off the boat he escaped. The detectives also failed to get the name of the young man.
